We cannot overlook the importance of oral health as a critical aspect of whole-body health.

The oral microbiome is one of the body's first defenses against immune assaults. An unbalanced oral microbiome has been associated with increased pro-inflammatory cytokines such as IL-6 and reduced regulatory cytokine, IL-12. Adverse gum health compounds these same cytokine responses, and if this cytokine balance is left untreated, it may lead to long-term bone, gum, and tooth health issues. Gum health is also closely linked to heart health and overall aging status. Studies that involved probiotics as an adjunct to clinical periodontal treatment report a marked improvement in patient clinical status compared to clinical treatment alone.

OraMax™ combines published researched-based probiotic strains, enzymes, herbs, and xylitol to promote healthy cytokine and oxidative stress responses, maintain normal plaque levels for long-term teeth and gum health, and maintain a healthy oral microbiome.
